Report on State Level Colloquium on “Victim Emancipation through Compensation”

organized on 23rd January, 2016 at Nyaya Sadan, Ranchi
by Jharkhand State Legal Services Authority

A State Level Colloquium on “Victim Emancipation through Compensation” was organized on 23rd January, 2016 (Saturday) at 10:30 AM at Jharkhand State Legal Services Authority (JHALSA) Auditorium, Nyaya Sadan, Doranda, Ranchi by Jharkhand State Legal Services Authority, Ranchi in three sessions including Inaugural Session, Technical Session I and Technical Session II.

Genesis of Colloquium : “Victim – Emancipation through Compensation”

The victims set the Criminal Law into motion and then goes into oblivion. The Judiciary has been assigned with the task of protecting the right to life and personal liberty of people. As a consequence, the Hon’ble Apex Court forged new tools, devised new methods and adopted new strategies for the purpose of striving to reinstate the state of victim as it were before the occurrence of the crime. The emergence of compensatory jurisprudence in the light of human rights philosophy is a positive signal.

The Law Commission of India in its 154th report in the year 1996 delved into the concept of Victimology and the importance of compensation. It observed how the attention of criminologists, penologists and reformers of criminal justice system has been increasingly directed to victimization and protection of victims of crimes.

The Widgery Committee in Britain has listed several views about the rationale of the concept of compensation, namely, “benefit to the victims, possible deterrent effect on the offender or on the public, the possible educative or preventive effect on public morality, the possible reformatory effect on offender, its effect on depriving the offender of ill gotten gains and the view that compensation has an “intrinsic moral value of its own”.

The General Assembly of the United Nations in its 96th plenary meeting in the year 1985 made a Declaration of Basic Principles of Justice for Victims of Crime and Abuse of Power, recognizing that millions of people throughout the world suffer harm as a result of crime and the abuse of power and that the rights of these victims have not been adequately recognized and also that frequently their families, witnesses and others who aid them are unjustly subjected to loss, damage or injury.

The other day in Ankush Shivaji Gaikwad v. State of Maharashtra (2013) 6 SCC 770 and in Suresh and Another v. State of Haryana (2015) 2 SCC 227, Hon’ble Apex Court observed : “Sec. 357 Cr.p.c confers a duty on the Court to apply its mind to the question of compensation in every criminal case. It necessarily follows that the Court must disclose that it has applied its mind to this question in every criminal case.”

“The object and purpose of Section 357 A is to enable the Court to direct the State to pay compensation to the victim where the compensation under Section 357 was not adequate or where the case ended in acquittal or discharge and the victim was required to be rehabilitated.” Under this provision, even if the accused is not tried but the victim needs to be rehabilitated, the victim may request the State or District Legal Services Authority to award him or her compensation.”

“It is the duty of the courts, on taking cognizance of a criminal offence, to ascertain whether there is ‘tangible material to show commission of crime, whether the victim is identifiable and whether the victim of crime needs immediate financial relief. Gravity of offence and need of victim are some of the guiding factors to be kept in mind, apart from such other factors as may be found relevant in the facts and circumstances of an individual case.”
